Abstract We carried out studies aimed at monitoring the physiological and psychological development of children from rural areas. The children studied were five to 18-year-olds who were randomly assigned among their mothers and two to four fathers. After the first six months the children were followed up at regular intervals and were analyzed in terms of physical and psychological development. Physical and psychological development and psychometric criteria were used for the investigation of mental health and social and communicative development.. 1144.
